

STAFF CHANGES LOOM AT MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

Following are the minutes of a meeting of the Board of the Wainwright Municipal Hospital held on March 10th last when all members were present.

After the signing of the oath of office by the newly-elected members, the meeting was called to order by Chairman Gardner, and the minutes of previous meeting were read and on motion of Trustee Fuller were adopted.

The chairman then left the chair and the secretary called for nominations for the office of chairman for 1937.

Trustee Beaudette nominated Trustee Fuller for that office.

Moved by Trustee Gould—That nominations close. The motion carried and Trustee Fuller was declared elected and took the chair.

Trustee Gould was nominated as vice-chairman for the year, and this election was confirmed.

Moved by Trustee Gould—That Trustee Beaudette, Collette and Fuller be the House Committee.—Carried.

Moved by Trustee Collette—That Mr. J. W. Stuart be re-appointed as Secretary-Treasurer of the Board at the same salary.—Carried.

Moved by Trustee Gardner—That the Chairman and Secretary be authorized to sign Form LE-22 as required by the Bank of Montreal, and that the vice-chairman be authorized to sign cheques in the absence of the Chairman.—Carried.

The Secretary then presented the following letter to the Board:

Wainwright, March 10th, 1937

The Chairman & Board,
Wainwright Municipal Hospital.

Gentlemen—At your request and other members of the Board I hereby tender my resignation. I am sorry indeed that I was unable to attend your last meeting.

Being away on my two week holiday, and also an extra week for some sickness and an operation in my nose made it impossible for me to return sooner.

It would perhaps have saved a lot of hard feeling, but I will take this opportunity of thanking all the members of the Board for the past years of trust and fine co-operation.

I hope you will be fortunate in securing another superintendent which will take interest in the larger undertaking as well as the minor details.

I would appreciate very much your consideration if you would give me a letter of recommendation for my work and also for the nine years of service.

I also wish to thank Mr. Stuart, the secretary-treasurer, for his thoughtfulness and his help in this work.

Trusting you may have the very best of luck, I remain

Yours very sincerely,

L. M. PAGE, R.N.

Moved by Trustee Gardner—That resignation of Miss Page be accepted and that letter of recommendation be given her as to her services while in the employ of the Wainwright hospital.—Carried.

Car License Plates Ready Next Week

Joe Welch, the local car license issuer, has received notice from the provincial government not to issue any more stickers for cars as the license plates for the 1937 issue will be in the hands in time to start selling them on Monday next (March 22nd). He says it is absolutely essential that applications for plates bring in the serial, engine and 1936 license numbers of their cars, as the department will not allow plates to be issued without this information. So this warning!

Mr. W. Seguin who has been under treatment for a broken shoulder at the University hospital in Edmonton returned home last week. He has only partially recovered from his painful injury.

District Meeting Teachers' Assoc.

A general business meeting of the Wainwright District A.T.A. Local was held in the Wainwright school Saturday afternoon last, with nearly thirty members present.

The minutes of the previous meeting held last fall in Wainwright were read by the secretary and approved.

A report from the Festival committee was given by Mr. O. W. Murray and Mr. H. P. Thorsen. Both urged the teachers to do their utmost to support the musical festival to be held in Wainwright on May 11th, 1937. It was explained that the festival is under the auspices of the Convention committee and the district local of the A.T.A.

Mr. R. B. Shaw, the geographical representative, was present at the meeting and gave a great deal of helpful advice.

The constitution as decided upon by the executive was then read clause by clause and approved by the meeting and duly adopted.

The following committees were appointed: viz.: research, positions, and auditing.

Delegates to represent this Local at the Easter convention were then elected in the persons of W. R. Dean, Viking; I. S. Reeds, Irma, and M. E. Wittmann, Wainwright.

The Spring games meet will be held in Irma on Saturday, May 29th. Programmes will be in the hands of the teachers by May 1st. The annual Spring rally will be held in Viking on Saturday, June 12th.

A vote of thanks was extended to the Wainwright School Board for the use of the school for this meeting.

Monthly Meeting of Women's Institute

The home of Mrs. W. Bruner on Tuesday, March 9th, saw some 18 members of the W.I. in attendance at the monthly meeting, as well as six visitors.

The meeting was opened in the usual manner, and many Irish jokes were given as an answer to roll-call. Prizes were made for work on a "Coronation Quilt" as well as for a tag day which will be held on May 8th next.

The report from the Child Welfare secretary showed that help had been extended to some needy cases.

At the close of business, Mrs. H. Smart gave a very pleasing number at the piano, and in a few well chosen words Mrs. Bruner, the president, wished for Mrs. T. Blison who is leaving shortly for the East good health and much happiness in that lady's new home, and asked her acceptance of a parting gift from the members, the presentation being made by Mrs. J. W. Stuart.

For a prize donated by Mrs. Carrell, Mrs. Street was declared winner of the contest, and a vote of thanks was accorded to Mesdames Bruner and Smart as hostesses for the afternoon.

The next meeting will be held on April 9th at the home of Mrs. C. W. McBride.

Likely Oil Well Springs a Surprise

The Machinery Depot Ltd., a Calgary firm dealing in machinery, well casing, etc., have pulled the casing from a number of abandoned wells in this field during the past few years, and recently recovered several hundred feet of 8-in. casing from the Emerald well after considerable difficulty when a heavy flow of wet gas was encountered.

Then they moved their derrick and machinery to a well on Steve Bowerman's homestead north of town, to pull the casing from a well thought to be a dry hole, which is about 2,100 feet in depth.

In order to loosen the casing they set a charge of dynamite at the 1800-foot level, this to shatter the tubing at that depth. Immediately the well filled with crude oil, and the provincial department have been notified. It has been decided not to pull the casing at present, as a valuable oil well may result.

CARD OF THANKS

The sincere appreciation of the family of the late Mrs. J. Birtles in this way extended to friends and neighbors for acts of kindness and expressions of sympathy tendered during their recent bereavement.

Hi-School Bonspiel Is Happy Event

Those who happened to be at the curling rink on Saturday last could plainly see the nature of curling in Wainwright is well satisfied.

The boys and girls of the two high schools gathered at the curling rink at 8 a.m. for their second bonspiel of the season.

The origin of these high school bonspiels dates back to 1933, and each year since then the boys and girls have held one or two bonspiels near the end of the curling season. Each year a marked improvement may be noted in the playing, showing that each player is improving with practice.

Some of the players showed a truly professional touch too, as they slid their rocks along the ice, the sweepers "going right to town" with their brooms, as the rafterers rang with the shouts of "Never leave it! Never leave it! Let it curl! Bring it out!"

At any rate, everyone curled for the good clean sport of the game, and when the day ended all agreed that without a doubt "School Bonspiel Saturdays" top the list of enjoyable days.

All day free doughnuts and coffee were served by several of the school girls.

The players of the Arthur Bate-man rink proved themselves to be real masters of the game by defeating the Rudd rink, the Milner rink, the Fraser rink, and the Meade rink in rapid succession; finally walking off with the First Grand Challenge prize; while Mr. Meade's rink took the second in that event.

For the consolation prize, the Thorsen and Wiley rinks battled it out for first place, with the former emerging victorious.

Those who took part in the bonspiel wish to thank the members of the Wainwright Curling Club for their generosity in giving the boys and girls access to their rocks and brooms, and for showing their keen interest in helping to promote curling among the younger generation.—Con.

Drilling Company Will Start New Location

Messrs. J. L. Wilson and Frank Stevens, as heads of the S.W.S. Drilling Co. Ltd., are truly busy men these days in preparing for work on the new well which is to be drilled for the Battersby Oil Ltd.

Under an agreement with Eastern Enterprises they are to proceed immediately on the new Battle View venture, the site chosen for the venture being on the N.W. of 32-47-564, which it is confidently believed to be situated in a truly choice location.

The necessary machinery and works for this undertaking is being unloaded "as fast as it arrives" in town, and within a very short time it is hoped to have the drillers "pushing 'er down" to the liquid gold.

St. Patrick's Tea Is Well Attended

Sponsoring their annual St. Patrick's tea and sale of home cooking the ladies of the Presbyterian church were hostesses to a large number of Saturday afternoon last in the L.O.O.F. hall.

Although the turn-out was gratifying, the weather was not altogether in their favor, and probably hindered quite a number from attending.

The tables and home-cooking booth were all prettily decorated in keeping with the occasion in green and white streamers and shamrocks, and the proceedings throughout gave a general Irish atmosphere.

The ladies are very grateful to all those who helped the sale to be so successful.

Institute Sets New Programme For Year

Following is the programme which is to be followed during the balance of 1937 by the members of the local branch of the W.I. and all interested should cut this out and keep for future reference.

April 10th
Place—Home of Mrs. McBride.
Opening—Maggie Leaf, Forever; W.I. Creed.
Roll Call—House-keeping Hints. Gift—Mrs. Chynoweth.
Paper on Child Welfare—Miss E. Martin.
Reading—Mrs. Smart.
Vocal Duet—Mrs. Street and Mrs. Carrell.
Hostesses—Mrs. McBride.

Happy Young Couple Plight Their Troth

Simplicity marked a lovely spring ceremony in Edmonton on Saturday evening when Ruby Agnes Lang, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Lang, of Ridgefield, Saskatchewan, became the bride of Raymond Leslie Crowder, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Crowder, of Delta, Alberta. The Rev. Dr. George A. MacDonald officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess style gown of ivory figured satin, floor length with tiny buttons to the hemline at the back, and carried a shower bouquet of carnations in shades of pink and white with marguerite. A small Juliet cap of pearls was her headpiece.

Mrs. Lang, mother of the bride, wore a gown of light with brilliant clasp and corsage of red carnations. Crowder, mother of the bridegroom, was charming in a gown of copper colored satin, with shoulder knot of yellow roses.

The rooms were tastefully decorated with fern and spring flowers.

Mr. J. D. Rae played the wedding march, and the organist of the register Mr. Gordon Gedhart sang "Because."

Following the ceremony a wedding supper was served to thirty-five guests and later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Crowder left for Wainwright, where Mr. Crowder is on the staff of the Bank of Montreal branch. They will make their home here.

For travelling the bride wore over a brown woolen suit, a tweed great coat with collar of fox fur. Accessories in brown leather matched.—Con.

Coronation Ceremonies Greatest Travel Event

WINNIPEG, Man.—Canada within the next few weeks will send its largest delegation in many years to England to attend the coronation ceremonies in May 12th, exceeding even the number that left on the Vinny Pilgrimage last summer, according to R. Creelman, passenger traffic manager of the Canadian National Railways. "Already London is undergoing the change that will transform the city into a garden of color for the coronation," stated Mr. Creelman. "In addition to the gay and attractive street decorations along the route where tens of thousands of people will be seated, the places to be flooded are Buckingham Palace, the Victoria Memorial, St. James' Palace, Westminster Abbey, the National Gallery, the Tower of London, Houses of Parliament and Tower, Trafalgar Square, Windsor Castle and Hampton Court Palace, to mention only a few of the more prominent edifices of interest."

Shipping from Montreal for the Coronation, have been augmented to include eight liners, these being the Akanda, Andania and Duchesse of York on April 23, the Ausonia on April 29 and the Athenia, Lancastria, Duchesse of Atholl and Montcalm on April 30. From Quebec the Empress of Australia will sail on April 24.

Mr. Fred Ruhl, has taken over the meat market formerly conducted by Mr. Duckfield during the past week. Mr. and Mrs. Duckfield are leaving for San Diego, Calif., where Mrs. Duckfield's two brothers are in business.

Season Is Expected

With the unprecedented mildness of the present winter in Eastern Canada, it is expected that the maple sugar season will open much earlier than usual. The province of Quebec is Canada's largest producer of maple sugar products, followed by Ontario, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways.

Church Services For Easter Week

For the first four evenings of Easter week, March 22nd to 25th, joint services will be held in the United and Presbyterian churches. These services will begin at 8 o'clock.

On Monday and Tuesday, the meetings will be at 11 a.m. and on Wednesday and Thursday in the Presbyterian church with addresses from Rev. T. E. Armstrong and Rev. Evans of Chauvin. These meetings have as their object the enrichment of our spiritual life through deeper devotion to Our Master and His cause in the world. "We cannot go further unless we go deeper."

Each church will hold a service on Good Friday at 11 a.m. and on Easter Sunday music and messages will be in keeping with the occasion.

You are invited to these meetings. The world needs dynamic personalities today. Your church challenges you to be one of them.

Chauvin Players At The Theatre

It was unfortunate that only a mediocre attendance visited the theatre last week for the visit of the Chauvin players, when their offering of "Holding Back the Truth" was produced under the auspices of the Westminister (Chauvin) Y.F.C.

All taking part acquitted themselves in an able manner, proving that Mr. Kennedy, the producer, had wisely chosen his casts.

At the close of the play a short dance amused the crowd for a couple of hours.

Very Lucky Escape From Death By Fire

Mr. Lou Wallace, of the Gilt Edge district was brought to hospital last week, very badly burned about the face and hands in attempting to extinguish a fire which destroyed his barn and outbuildings.

Mr. Wallace was at work beating tar for the repair of a granary roof, when a spark ignited a straw-stack close to his barn, which immediately caught on fire.

He dashed through the flames at one end of the barn in an endeavor to save his livestock, thinking he could get out of the building at the other end which was not then burning. However, the door at the other end was fastened and the smoke and heat was so intense that Mr. Wallace could not find the radiator, and to save himself from being overcome he was compelled to dash back through the flames the way he came.

Getting out, he managed to beat out the fire on his burning clothing, but his hands and face were very badly burned and he suffered terrible pain while being brought to hospital, this trip being prolonged owing to the roads being useless for any vehicle, a sleigh, although Swathing was used.

We are glad to learn at last reports that the patient is progressing nicely but is not yet free from pain, and we wish him speedy recovery to full health.

Spring Brings Special Low Fares To Coast

WINNIPEG, Man.—Advancing spring bargain railway fares from the prairie provinces to the Pacific Coast, according to an announcement by Jos. B. Parker, secretary of the Canadian Passenger Association.

Tickets go on sale March 20 to 28, inclusive, and on the basis of a cent-a-mile rate are good in coaches only; at a cent and one-quarter in tourist sleepers and at a cent and one-half in standard sleepers.

The return limit provides a thirty-day holiday in addition to the date provided for children under the age limit and the usual baggage allowance is made. Stopovers can be made at Edmonton, Calgary and Vancouver.

Mrs. H. Ward, sr., spent a day or so in the city last week-end.

Freddie Bartholomew In Comedy Drama

In the picture, which will be showing in the Elite theatre next Thursday, Freddie Bartholomew plays the leading role, that of a thoroughly brilliant young fellow, who had a toothback for a pal, thought the meanest with, grocer the greatest guy on earth, and loved his mother with the same sincere affection every boy has for his dearest friend.

Freddie, Ceddie's widowed mother, is informed that her son is the future Earl of Dorincourt. Giving presents to their friends, they leave Brooklyn for England. There's many a tear drop when on landing, Ceddie is forced to separate from Dearest and go to live with the Earl of Dorincourt, a castle, a cadaverous symbol of nobility.

Instead of finding an American brat, the Earl finds a real boy, one whom he is proud to have working his way into his heart. In Ceddie he sees everything worthy to carry on the name and Dorincourt heritage.

An impostor appears, with seemingly all the necessary legal documents which prove her son to be the rightful heir, but back in America, Ceddie's friends, reading about the scandal and seeing the pictures, recognize him as Ceddie's. With their aid the fraud is exposed and—

Don't fail to see this stirring picture which is scheduled for the Elite theatre, March 18-19-20.

BRUCE BARTON Says:

Youth Must Not Be Discouraged

Some of us who are older can tell the young man of today that from our own experience, he, at 25 is in the age of greatest discouragement. We came into business life full of determination to set things right instantly. We were frankly critical of the bungling of our predecessors. There should be no more mistakes and no delay!

In a couple of years we, too, were in the depths of despair, deeper depths than we have ever been in since.

It is not clear to any human mind just what is the whole purpose and plan of human life. But two things are reasonably apparent.

First, it does not seem to be any part of the program to have the millennium come quickly or easily. Gain is won only as a result of sweat and blood, and time.

Second, as we get older we see more clearly how destructive it would be if all the good ideas of youth were allowed to become immediately effective. The first two Great Reforms in whose service I myself labored were thus successful. I think now that both were mad mistakes.

So in our later years we give up the idea of a quick millennium. Some of us do it in deep discouragement. Others say: "I cannot lick the world, but there is one part of it I can lick namely, myself. I'll see what I can do with that."

It's a good sporting proposition. And who knows? Maybe the spread of that simple idea is the real plan.

Quantity Means Lower Prices

A scientist who presides over a laboratory of a big chemical company was telling me the story of artificial rubber. Many minds contributed to the discovery and perfection of this product. It is used now in certain specialized fields where extra endurance and resistance to acids are necessary, but its present cost is many times that of natural rubber.

Said the scientist quite casually: "Of course, it will be cheaper."

It did not occur to him that he was saying anything especially important, but, as a matter of fact, he was expressing unconsciously the whole philosophy and justification of big business. Businesses get big and stay big in these modern days because by research they find ways to make things in greater quantity and so to make them cheaper.

Look around you, and you see everywhere the results of Big Business research and production. The electric light bulb was invented by Edison, but if there had been no improvements in it since Edison's day your electric light bill would be about a hundred times what it is now—for the same amount of light.

The automobile, which costs you less than a thousand dollars, is so much better than the best car a millionaire could buy twenty years ago that there is no comparison. It has been steadily improved and made cheaper by being manufactured in big quantities.

The one thing that goes down all the time is the price of the goods of Big Business.

Why Not Get Interested

Perhaps the most unusual sight in Rockefeller Centre, N.Y., is $35,000 worth of window dressing in the two window displays owned by Charles de Ziemler. In the window and on the walls inside is a display of pictures of artistic and historical value—all paintings by famous artists, pen-and-ink sketches, steel engravings, cartoons, and Japanese prints—all about barbering. And there are rare barbering items—a Persian barber's set, a handsome blue urn labeled "leeches" once used by a blood-letting English barber, ancient and unusual razors, 17th century charts showing 38 beard and mustache combinations, and other curios to the number of 350. It is the largest collection of barbering rarities in the United States, if not in the world.

Visiting a museum in Cairo years ago Charles de Ziemler saw a razor lying on the floor of the Pharaohs. Resembling an axehead, it made him realize the antiquity of his profession and that his field was rich in fascinating lore and history. He began to take his work more seriously and held his head higher for he found that the arts of dentistry and surgery were both born in the barber-shop. He decided to collect everything he could lay hands on pertaining to the history of barbering. He has spent $35,000 on his hobby, though the present value of his collection is considerably more. But a remark he made was far more significant than his interesting comments about barbering down through the ages. He said, "I have always deplored how some people belittle their work. The deeper I get into my profession the more interesting I find it, and my motive in making this collection has been to elevate my calling." Incidentally, a further result has been to make his shop more profitable.

To fall in love with your job and get the most from it, there is a simple recipe: Get acquainted with it! Explore it. No job is so dull that it grows more interesting as one digs beneath its surface. No work is so limited but that, looking into it, will reveal far greater possibilities than appear on the surface.

A salesman of insecticides got tired of rattling off the same old selling talk. He decided to look deeper into his subject. He began, by reading about the insects his product would kill. Soon he had a library on entomology. He collected insects. Then he mounted his specimens in a small case to carry on his business trips. He showed dealers the pests he was helping to exterminate and just what damage they did. Other salesmen had no chance in competition with him, for he made customers feel that in using his insecticide they were crusaders in a worthy cause.

Another salesman who sells locks became absorbed in a study of their historical evolution. He hoarded his sales by carrying three change medals looks in his sample case; customers are fascinated by the interesting stories he tells about each one.

The plumber's assistant who is interested in more than wrenches and pipe cutters began with that civilization began with the introduction of plumbing. Without plumbing, terrible pestilences would still wipe out whole communities and peoples. A young man just starting with a rubber company said: "Did you ever realize what would happen if all the rubber now in use suddenly dissolved? Every airplane would crash to the ground; every automobile would stop; no big fire could be fought effectively; many industries would collapse entirely." As he went on, he pictured a world in chaos through lack of rubber. If your work seems uninteresting, make the discovery of just what would happen if glass, nails, newspapers, or whatever article you help to make or sell were obliterated.

We take for granted the romance of medicine, the rich backgrounds of law, the absorbing detection of crime detection, but working behind a soda fountain seems so prosaic, so lacking in possibilities. Let's see. William Hall advertised ice cream in 1796, and George Washington owned a crude ice-cream freezer. The soda fountain was patented in 1833, but for 41 years no one had enough imagination to drop a scoop of ice cream into a glass of soda water! Ice-cream soda was first made in Philadelphia in 1874. The sundae didn't come until 1897 when a drug-gist in Ithaca, N.Y., invented it. Suncoy to entertain customers who complained that the barrooms were too hot, and Welch's Grape Juice were all such little ideas and launched on so little capital that any enterprising soda dispenser might have gathered them.

Like barbering, many occupations have more interesting when their history is known. The auctioneer's tag dates back to Rome where a spear carrying a crimson banner was stuck in the ground to mark the place of sale. In A.D. 193 the Roman Empire was put up at auction by the Praetorian Guards and knocked down to Dictator Julian for a sum that gave the soldiers the equivalent of $1000 apiece.

TODAY & TOMORROW

by Frank Parker Stockbridge

INTEREST 31 years
On the day I was born my grandfather put $100 in a savings bank to my credit. It was to become mine when I was 21. At that time Eastern savings banks paid 7 per cent interest. My $100 accumulated at that rate, compounded annually, for nine years. Then the interest rate was cut to 6 per cent, and stayed there until I reached my majority.

A few days after my 21st birthday I drew a little more than $250 from the bank. My grandfather's gift had multiplied itself more than five times! That was my first practical lesson in the breeding power of money.

Nobody can make money at that rate today except by taking risks of loss. Most of the banks that used to pay 6 per cent now pay 2½. A bank that used to pay 5 per cent at that rate would grow to only $167.58 in 21 years. Money is cheaper than it ever has been in my lifetime—which is another way of saying that prices are higher.

SAVINGS
The safest investment for the ordinary citizen is a savings bank account, especially in a "mutual" bank such as those of New England, New York, Pennsylvania and some other states. No depositor in a mutual bank has lost a cent. I believe in fifty years or more. And nobody makes a cent profit out of mutual savings bank deposits except the depositors.

There are more depositors in these banks now than ever before, with more money saved up, and the banks have more assets than ever. I've just seen the annual report of the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks for the last year. They have nearly 14½ million depositors, with average deposits of $700 each. I call them our fourteen million smartest citizens.

Nobody gets rich quick putting money away in a savings bank, but nobody who does that goes broke quick, either.

TAXES
You and I and each of our children and grandchildren are paying $100 a year in taxes. The Twentieth Century Fund reports that is what the levy of Federal State and local governments upon every man, woman and child would come to if the tax burden were evenly distributed. The Federal Government takes 44 cents of each tax dollar, the states 20 cents and local governments 36 cents.

"But I don't pay any such amount of tax," you say. Lots of folks think that taxes are paid only by the rich and the big corporations. But ask yourself where the people whose names are on the tax lists got the money to pay their taxes. You and I pay them. The taxpayers can get their money for taxes only by selling things to you and me and all the rest. Every time you spend a nickel, the storekeeper or whoever takes your money, is an unofficial tax-collector. Your money pays his taxes, the taxes of the people who make whatever you buy, and the taxes of your landlord and all the other property owners. Think that over.

WORDS
In my work I have to be careful about the use of words. Like everybody else in the writing trade, it is important for me to be sure, not so much to use words which everybody understands as that the reader will understand the word to mean just what I intend it to mean. It's no literary crime to ask readers to the dictionary, that's good for their intelligence. But when I write a word which in all my experience and by all the dictionaries means one thing, and find that its meaning has been changed in the public mind to mean something quite different, that is serious.

I'm thinking now of the word "Liberal" in its political sense. It used to mean in politics what it means in other relations—generous, tolerant, reasonable. That old meaning seems to have been thrown away, and men call themselves Liberals today who are narrow-minded and certainly not respectful of minorities and their rights.

DEVILS
It is human nature to believe that an evil spirit actuates everyone who does not agree with one. From that it is but a step to regarding such persons as devils, and the next step is to personality groups and classes of people as devils.

I have heard about the "Money Devil" ever since boyhood. The Money Devil was a collective term for all bankers and others who tried to collect their interest on their loans to farmers. The railroads were the pet devil for years of those who blamed them for their personal misfortunes. It is an easy way to shift responsibility to blame everything that goes wrong on an imaginary devil.

FERTILIZERS IN FORESTRY

SOME GERMAN EXPERIENCES

In the January issue of "Die Ernahrung der Pflanze" there are two articles pertaining to the use of fertilizers in forestry, one discussing the causes and cure of "yellow tip" pines, the other describing the recent changes in forest management brought about by new legislation for the protection of game.
The results of experiments, carried out in 1924, by the German Agricultural Society in the Prussian State Forest, had indicated that "yellow tip" of pines was due primarily to a deficiency of magnesium in the soil, though induced also by drought, excess of lime and by lack of humus when the fallen pine needles had been removed. In order to verify these results, a further experiment was undertaken in 1928 on the model farm at Bielefeld, Trampole, Uckermark, which confirmed the original finding and proved, further, that the application of a phosphate-potash fertilizer with magnesia controlled "yellow tip" and increased greatly the vigour and development of the trees.
The other article deals with new methods of afforestation in Germany, the thinning out of plantations and the interplanting of hardwoods with conifers, so as to avoid too much of an acid-humus surface soil layer which tends to inhibit the development of the undergrowth on which the game feeds. The use of a phosphate-potash fertilizer is distinctly beneficial to the trees and, because it promotes also a nutritious, palatable undergrowth, spares the trees the attacks of game.

One can devote as much or as little time as one chooses. There are many flowers, vegetables, shrubs and trees that can be grown with practically no care at all and with surprising success. Again as the beginner becomes interested there are others that to produce to perfection will tax the greatest skill that can be developed.
For example the person who cannot spare time may put most of the grounds available in grass with the edges in perennial flowers and shrubbery. A tree towards the back and a climber over the house will complete the picture and once planted practically nothing more will be required. Digging of the borders once a year and a little thinning to keep them in perennial flowers and shrubbery. ### EARLY VARIETIES OF GRAIN POPULAR

With standard varieties of grain being damaged by early fall frosts almost every year, Western farmers are beginning to lean toward the earlier-maturing sorts.

A great many early varieties of both wheat and oats have been tested at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe. These tests have shown that, although wheat stands sorts attain full maturity they outyield the earlier varieties, yet when the standard varieties are damaged by frost the approved early selection produce more grain.

In addition to the increased yields in frost years a superior grade is secured on the early grain, which are usually able to mature before the occurrence of damaging fall frosts. Then, too, their early maturity permits later seeding and consequently more intensive spring cultivation, with the result that the crop is free from weeds, and dockage is accordingly less.

Recommended varieties of early oats are Alaska, in the very early class, and Legacy in the medium class—about a week earlier than Banner or Victory. Legacy yields up with the standard varieties, even when the latter sorts mature, and in years of frost injury Legacy far outdistances both Banner and Victory.

The Lacombe Station recommends Garnet Reward and Red Bow wheat for districts where Marquis will not consistently mature. One of these varieties may prove superior in one district, and another in a district with slightly different soil and climatic conditions.

Practically any well-known variety of barley will mature under average conditions in Central Alberta. O.A.C. 21 is the best variety for making, while Trebil is the highest yielding. Trebil, although not acceptable for malting, is a good feed barley.

Those varieties are no longer in the experimental stage. They have been tried and have proven satisfactory over a number of years in the fields of many of the most successful farmers in Central and Northern Alberta.

WEED CONTROL BY SHALLOW TILLAGE

All weed seeds with a few exceptions, such as wild oats, wild buckwheat and couch grass, are as small or smaller than grass and clover seeds. They germinate best therefore, near the surface of the ground. It has been found that weed seeds which mature early in the season germinate readily in the fall of the same year, provided conditions for their germination are favourable. Many of the weeds which grow in grain crops ripen earlier than grain and their seeds have fallen to the ground before the grain is harvested. Tillage, not deeper than two inches, promotes the germination of these weed seeds and the young seedlings can then be killed by subsequent tillage or by frost.
When weeds have been kept down in food crops by cultivation and hoeing the surface layer of soil has become comparatively free from weed seeds. Ploughing or deep cultivation after a good crop turns down this

Canadian Garden Service

Unlike many other recreations there are no rigid rules in the game of gardening. These are made up as one goes along and are revised or ignored to suit individual preferences. It is this very elasticity that makes the hobby such an interesting one and prevents any real hardship from being exactly alike. Moreover there need be no mystery or hardship about securing the most satisfactory results.

Winter Damage
This is the season when most damage occurs to roses, perennials, fruit trees and other plants which winter outdoors. Warm days that tempt too early growth, with near zero nights following, cold drying winds from the north or west are responsible. Very tender things will benefit from a light covering of straw leaves or similar material for a few weeks until spring really arrives. Nature's own protection, snow, is often absent.

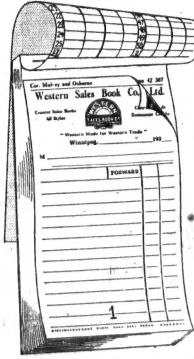

Hot Beds
While a large number of early plants are needed, these can be furnished easily and cheaply by starting seed in a hot-bed.

The latter is usually prepared now. It consists of a bed of fresh horse Graceful lines are the most noticeable feature of the latest footwear fashions. Despite portly performances, eyelids, bow trimmings, and open toes and heels, the smartest styles in both daytime and evening models owe their chief distinction to form-fitting simplicity.

A spectator sports outfit that started in Hollywood and threatens to sweep the rest of the country this spring consists of a casually tailored suit, felt hat and shoes with low built-up heels, set off by a brightly colored sweater instead of the conventional tailored blouse.

The trouble with most people who go on various diets is that they overdo it. The body needs about thirty-eight different chemicals. Most of us are lucky if we get eighteen. You can get a sufficient quota by balancing and mixing, and picking and choosing among foods, rather than denying yourself certain essentials. And it's much safer to eat smaller quantities of a variety of foods than to restrict your diet to certain items.

Ripe olives blend with a wide variety of sandwich fillings. Eggs, cheese, ham, celery, tomatoes and nuts are but the beginning of a long list of materials which take on new zest when ripe olives are part of the combination.

The fact that salt is as necessary to human well-being as, for instance, water, is demonstrated in a story of the North West Territories which appears in the current issue of the magazine of Canadian Industries Limited, the Oval. A party of trappers on the Mackenzie River lost a quantity of their provisions including their supply of salt; when a canoe capsized. For five days they had been without salt and were beginning to show signs of cramps and fatigue due to the deficiency. Rounding a bend in the river they came upon a deserted cabin in which they found, to their great relief, half a cup of salt.

The Family DOCTOR by JOHN JOSEPH GAINES, M.D., F.R.C.

SUNLIGHT
The oldest subject "under the sun." But how important—and how interesting! Wise is the family doctor who knows the uses of the God-given elements at his command, within easy reach.
Natural sunlight is just right for the human being—and for all life on the earth, animal and vegetable. It is a vital necessity. A dearth of it will produce weak bodies, poor blood, inefficient nerves—weakness of people. Outdoor dwellers in rural districts are more hardy and vigorous than inhabitants of crowded cities.
Good, bright, yellow sunlight is rich in ultra-violet rays, and here we get into up-to-date stuff. The ultra-violet ray is the agent that converts the numerous lime salts of our foods into suitable form for appropriation by muscle and nerves. It is invaluable for the breathing apparatus, and is supreme in maintaining the alkaline balance in the body. It prevents acid destruction of vital organs, such as the kidneys.
Sunlight is the principal factor in bringing about the marvelous changes, so necessary to bodily vigor; it doesn't cost anything if you live in its vicinity, and are free to get about in it.
In the mountain regions, the nearer approach to the sun gives a much greater volume of violet-ray. In lower levels, the air is more polluted with dust, smoke and other outside matters, which diminish the actinic effect of the rays.
Artificial instruments have been invented, whereby the doctor may administer sun-rays to patients in winter and cloudy times, when outdoor absorption is impossible.

WEDNESDAY

MARCH 17th

When an attorney, only one highlighting the degree of strength regulate for accomplishing particular object; a mere notice of the necessity for action; a suggestion to children and fools; only a mere stimulus to men—Samuel Warren.

GOOD INTENTIONS

The world is full of people whose intentions are good but whose acts do not have the beneficent results which those who perform them intend.

Indeed, it is probable that more harm is done by well-intentioned people who think they are doing the right thing, than is ever done by others with deliberate intent to do harm. It is to excuse that a person's intentions were good when the consequences of his actions are evil.

As Dr. Samuel Johnson said, 150 years ago, "He is paved with good intentions." He was paraphrasing the words of George Herbert, the great English preacher and poet of the 17th Century. Thoughtful men of all times have recognized the danger of giving men whose major equipment is good intent, power over the affairs and lives of others.

That is particularly true in government. Example of the effects of good intentions are to be found in the troubles which beset the whole world today. In the effort to restore order and to improve the conditions of their people, well-intentioned men have taken control of the affairs of nations, with the result that instead of making things better they have become worse. So much worse, in deed, that the whole world seems on the verge of another fratricidal war.

Mussolini, Hitler and Stalin beyond doubt were full of good intentions when they set up their respective experiments in government. The result has been to deprive their people of their inborn human rights and liberties and reduce them to complete servitude.

Wise men in all ages have learned to be wary of the man who prates too much about his good intentions.

He is always a good man to keep a watchful eye on.

RICHEST MAN IN WORLD

CELEBRATES

The richest man in the world is the Nizam of Hyderabad. Even in India, where the treasure boards of the native princes all contain fabulous wealth accumulated over countless generations, His Exalted Highness, Sir Mir Osman Ali Khan, Grand

Commander of the Order of the Star of India, Honorary Lieutenant of the British Army, has just celebrated his 60th birthday. He is registered to own gold in bars worth 250 million dollars, and diamonds, rubies and other jewels valued at two thousand millions.

For hundreds of years the Nizam's ancestors had been piling up this huge store of wealth, which came partly out of the mines which are the Sovereign's personal property, like all the rest of the 82,000 square miles in which his 14,500,000 subjects live. He owns everything in the empire.

So just because he is their sovereign, the people of Hyderabad have just been celebrating the Niz-am's 25th anniversary on the throne of Hyderabad by showering him with gifts of more gold and jewels, to add to the ancestral store. His regular income from land rents, railroads, mines, factories and taxes is only

50 million dollars a year, poor fellow!

Unlike many Oriental potentates

the Nizam is not revered by his people because of his religious leadership. He is a Mohammedan and most of his subjects are Hindus.

That is probably the secret of the continuance in this 20th Century of a feudal system of paternal government such as the peoples of the western world got rid of long ago.

The people are too ignorant to resist the rule of their despotic ruler being ruled if they don't want to be, or too timid to assert their rights. More probably they are content to be permitted to exist in primitive squalor and poverty, so long as a beneficent government, backed by the strong arm of the British Empire, gives them efficient police protection and sees to it that none starve.

We doubt whether any considerable number of Americans would like to live in Hyderabad.

In The Mail Bag

To the Editor:

Dear Sir—So the Alberta Government has handed us over body and bones to the financial interests. In spite of all his denunciations of the terrible money barons and the 50

Bills, and his definite promise to give the people of Alberta from their fearful clutches, he has called on the Bank of Canada, the head of orthodox finance in the Dominion, to investigate our financial position with a view to granting monetary assistance. Was ever a capitulation more complete or humiliating? Mr. Aberhart was to free us from economic bondage by the use of our own credit to be created out of the end of a counting pen. How pleasant and convincing it sounded and how it destroyed the hopes of the people.

The existence in Western Canada of 12 paint manufacturing industries with an aggregate output of from $2,000,000 to $4,000,000 annually should be of more than passing interest to those who appreciate the importance of industrial development in the West. The industries have a payroll in excess of half a million dollars annually in normal times and distribute large sums in the West for the purchase of supplies and services.

AMONG THE OLD-TIMERS

"REMINISCENCES OF OTHER DAYS"

TEN YEARS AGO

Mr. A. Harden is busy moving his effects to the old Dave Williams' farm.

While at work, plastering, last week Mr. Jack Taylor unfortunately fell to the concrete below him and broke his arm as well as bruising himself in general.

Miss Elsie McLaughlin, well-known dramatic reader, was present at the United church Friday evening when she delighted her audience with her various numbers. Interspersed with the readings were musical numbers by local artists.

At the annual meeting of the Golf Club, the following were, among those elected to office: Patrons, Mr. and Mrs. J. MacKenzie; Pres. Dr. H. L. Courcier.

Mr. George Steel is remodeling the old Bellars house on Sixth avenue which he recently purchased.

It was a merry crowd that attended the annual St. Patrick's dance in the Elite theatre last week, which took the form of a masquerade. Winners for the best costumes were: Miss W. Foster (Martha Washington); Mrs. Walberg (Christmas Tree); Mr. R. Prosser (Spanish Prince); Mr. T. Billing (William Tell) and Dr. Wallace (Skeleton).

SYDENHAM

Mr. and Mrs. Ted Goddard and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Carl spent Sunday at the home of their parents.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Church visited at the home of the latter's family, on Sunday.

The north road west of the hospital is now open for cars.

Miss Doreen Woodward was an overnight guest on Friday at the home of Miss Pauline Dixon.

Mrs. J. Runke, who has been a patient at the Wainwright hospital during the past week, returned to her home on Friday feeling some better.

Mrs. J. St. Peter and Miss E. Merrick are spending a few days in Edmonton over the week-end.

HEATH

Miss Doris Daniels spent the week-end as the guest of Mrs. Patrick Herbert.

Among those taking advantage of the excursion to Edmonton at the week-end were, Mrs. R. Jones, Miss E. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. A. Sabourin, and Mr. Jack O'Keefe.

Mr. Bill Smith returned home last week after spending the past two months at Leland.

AUBURNDALE

The funeral services of Mrs. Amy Harle, wife of Mr. Septimus Harle of the Cummings district were held in the Auburndale church on Thursday, March 11th, interment taking place in the church cemetery. Mr. and Mrs. S. Harle came here on their honeymoon over thirty years ago from Newcastle, England. To mourn her loss, Mrs. Harle, besides her husband, leaves two sons (Oswald and Bobbie) and four daughters, Mrs. H. Eyben, Mrs. H. Barlow, Miss Elsie and Miss Dorothy Harle, all of Cummings.

GREENSHIELDS

Mrs. C. Morrisette returned home Saturday from Edmonton.

Miss Hettie Kennedy spent the week-end in Edmonton.

A Hard-time dance was sponsored by the Young People's Club on Friday. The prize winners were: Ladies, Miss Marion Haynes; 2nd, Mrs. Alex. Hutchison; Gents 1st, Mr. L. Haynes; 2nd, Mr. A. Plater.

Mrs. D. Hutchison is spending this week visiting Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Hutchison.

Mrs. A. Becket, Miss M. Becket and Miss E. Davis visited with Mrs. F. Murray last week.

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. H. Merrick on the birth of a daughter.

Sympathies are extended to the relatives of the late Mrs. Birles during their bereavement.

Owing to road conditions, the regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid was postponed until next month.

Mr. L. Good paid his annual visit to the school on Thursday afternoon.

Angora cats are the largest of pet cats known.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

A large crowd greeted the McCafferty Dramatic Troupe when they made their initial appearance before a Wainwright audience last Thursday evening in the theatre. Two humorous sketches of English life, "A Rough Diamond" and "Dandies and Doggies" were presented. In the former, Mrs. Lee and Mr. Herbert Spencer were splendid in the leading roles. In the latter, Miss Greenwood and Messrs. Smith, Jr., Smith, Sr., and R. J. Spencer also very capably portrayed their respective parts. Between the acts, Mrs. Lush sang a couple of numbers which were much enjoyed and the Wainwright Town Band entertained the audience with humorous selections.

Mr. H. L. Hough, the new manager of the local Creamery arrived in town with his family at the weekend to take up residence.

Mr. John H. Mott, pioneer resident of Wainwright district left on Thursday for Kelowna, B.C., where he has purchased property and plans to reside in future.

MOTHERS HAVE FAITH

in
"CROWN BRAND"

Doctors Recommend It!

Many thousands of Canadian babies have been brought to sturdy childhood with a regular diet of this pure and wholesome corn syrup—the most satisfactory form in which carbohydrates can be used with milk to provide the ideal bottle feed for infants. Leading physicians also endorse and recommend "CROWN BRAND" CORN SYRUP as a nourishing food for growing children.

A Testimonial that Convinces:

Mrs. Charles Case, of Vancouver, the proud mother of the triplet babies, Sylvia, Sheila and Shirley who are the darlings of the West Coast, pins her faith to "CROWN BRAND" CORN SYRUP and says:

"I am glad to tell you how much I appreciate your wonderful Crown Brand Corn Syrup. I heartily recommend this syrup to all mothers of young children."

The distinctive and delicious flavor of "CROWN BRAND" has made it Canada's favorite corn syrup—and used as a table syrup, on waffles or pancakes, or as a sauce on desserts, the whole family will enjoy it—and it really is so good for them. Famous athletes in all branches of sport, coaches and trainers of great athletic clubs, recommend "CROWN BRAND" CORN SYRUP as a delicious way to renew the energy and strength expended in strenuous games. Your boys and girls need it too.

THE SILK ENIGMA

BY J. R. WILMOT

AUTHOR
"ZORA, THE INVISIBLE,"
"DEATH IN THE STALLS, ETC."
Published by Special Arrangement
Copyright

Nikolai Noleuse, a departmental silk manager at Oxtom's, a big London silk emporium, is discovered by Phyllis Varley, first assistant in the Chinese Silk Department, lying dead, his body wrapped in a roll of Chinese silk beneath her counter.

Superintendent James Beck, of Scotland Yard, finds that Noleuse has been strangled, but after interviewing Peter Oxtom, the managing director, he discovers that the dead man had no apparent right on the premises the previous night, when death was adjudged to have taken place.

Believing that Miss Varley can supply the answers to a number of questions perplexing his mind, he sets out to interview the girl, who has been sent on duty after her gruesome experience.

(Now Read On)

"Two days ago," chanted Sun Yat Soh, in tones condemnatory, "Wu Ti would not have been suspect on the docket. Today—and who knows for how many days—the police will suspect all Chinamen inquiring about silks." He nodded his head understandingly. "Yes, Ling Foo, Wu Ti has definitely erred. We are in difficulty, but it is when we are in difficulty that our brains produce their best. I like difficulties, Ling Foo, for just that reason, I will withdraw within myself for an hour."

Ling Foo bowed his way out of the apartment.

But it was less than an hour before he was summoned again into the presence of Sun Yat Soh. That he succeeded, Mr. Varley must be sure. Since the Suchoff silk must as far as we know be consigned to Oxtom—and our information is good—we must make arrangements for the police to be withdrawn from the shop to enable yourself, Ling Foo, to proceed to Oxtom's and make your own inquiries. Mr. Peter Oxtom must be informed that the police activities are hampering his business. We must have freedom, Ling Foo."

Ling Foo's hand clutched spasmodically.

"But Excellency, may I hope that it has not escaped your august consideration that were I to present myself at the shop, I might be detained for police interrogation."

"The ox with the white liver, Ling Foo, is not fit food for any man. It shall be as I say," Sun Yat Soh was about to wave the man from him when he seemed to relent.

"Of course, Ling Foo, I leave the method of gaining this information to you, but you must suppose that the police could prove anything against a man who went into a shop to buy Suchoff silk."

But Ling Foo had other notions on that particular point. He had been in London sufficiently long to regard the police with no small amount of awe. Danger was piling itself upon danger, and the more he considered the matter the less he liked it.

When he had left Sun Yat Soh's apartment he went below and gave a further instruction, but this time to a slim, sulky Tartar known as Kublai.

The man nodded without speaking. An hour later Kublai had slipped away from the house like a shadow.

CHAPTER VIII

DOUBTS ABOUT NOLEUSE.

Just as Superintendent Beck and his henchman, Inspector Graves, had anticipated Peter Oxtom's table was, if anything, beyond expectations.

They dined well and they drank well, and Beck knew good wine when he rolled it around his palate.

In addition to Oxtom and the two Scotland Yard officers, there had been Mrs. Oxtom, a gracious and utterly charming middle-aged woman with a pleasant plump demeanour and a mass of soft flaxen hair that time was just beginning to tarnish.

Beside her sat Brenda Oxtom, a fine specimen of young British womanhood as Beck ever remembered having seen, and since he formed this conclusion before the butler had begun to dispense the wine in generous measure, it has to be admitted that the Superintendent's judgment was infallible.

Brenda Oxtom, at twenty-six, had not acquired so much sophistication that she had failed to be thrilled at last night's events at the store. Her father had given her first-hand information, and this had been colour-fully supplemented by the accounts she had read in the evening newspapers. The newspapers had recorded the affair more prominently than they might have been willing to give to the resignation of a Cabinet Minister.

The presence of the Superintendent and his Inspector at the dinner-table had crowned a day of pleasant thrills and she listened to the discussion with wrapt attention.

For one thing, Superintendent Beck was surprisingly unlike the Scotland Yard officer of her imagination, which, in all fairness, had been occasionally stimulated by the reading of crime fiction. In which she discovered that Scotland Yard reared a race of supermen who had but to glance at a corpse to know who had committed the crime, and for what motive the deed had been done.

Beck reminded her of a middle-class family man who had worked all day in a City office totting up endless columns of uninteresting digits and returning home each evening to whatever domestic hobbles he had.

Inspector Graves too, didn't look in the least official. His manners were mild and his mien rather serious. But nevertheless, he didn't look as if his mind was being over-exercised with crime. She had noticed his type often in City cafes at lunch-time poring over newspaper crossword puzzles, and occasionally biting the end of his lead pencil to coax inspiration.

The Superintendent, after having excused himself, as he termed it, "talking about," as he termed it, asked Peter Oxtom a number of questions. But the most important question was the filling of the vacancy by means of which Nikolaus Noleuse had received his recent appointment.

"I think I can explain that point, Mr. Beck," Oxtom had readily consented. "It was like this. We had been without a manager in the Chinese department for some time. The man we had previously left to take charge of one of our agencies in Paris. He was a good man—good and reliable, and at that time we wanted a good man in Paris, where we had found confirmation particularly keen in the Rue de la Paix."

"Our board of directors had for many of replacing him before them more than one occasion. We anticipated that we should have to fill the vacancy at some time or another, but it was eventually decided that I think I can explain that point, Mr. Beck," Oxtom had readily consented.

"It was like this. We had been without a manager in the Chinese department for some time. The man we had previously left to take charge of one of our agencies in Paris. He was a good man—good and reliable, and at that time we wanted a good man in Paris, where we had found confirmation particularly keen in the Rue de la Paix."

"Experts in Chinese silks and their manufacture are not picked up as easily as silk worms on mulberry bushes. About six weeks ago we had a letter from our main agent at Shanghai, in which he informed us that a man named Nikolaus Noleuse who had spent a number of years in China, and who was reputed to be one of the foremost authorities in his line, had set out for Europe, apparently—so our agent's information ran—to obtain a post in London."

"The reason for his departure was given that Noleuse had grown a trifle weary of the life out East, as he wished for a change. More than that gentlemen, our agent said that he had taken the liberty of providing Noleuse with a letter of introduction to the firm should he at any time find himself in London."

"About five weeks ago Noleuse sent up his card to me at the store, and I saw him. I put certain questions to him, and asked for references which were produced. Everything appeared satisfactory. The man undoubtedly was an authority on silks. I myself am not entirely unacquainted with the subject. I have not grown up with the business without 'learning a great deal, and I was convinced that Noleuse was the man we had been waiting for. I asked him whether or not he was free, and after we had settled the terms of his engagement, I arranged for him to have full control of the Chinese silk department. During the time he was with us I had never once had the slightest reason to doubt the wisdom of his judgment in anything."

Beck had looked thoughtful during Peter Oxtom's recital. Superficially it appeared straightforward, but there was a point that wanted clearing up.

"I suppose, Mr. Oxtom, you had no cause to doubt the authenticity of your Shanghai agent's letter to you recommending this man, and I take it, you were equally satisfied with the letter of introduction Noleuse produced at the first interview you had with him?"

For the first time since they had been talking Peter Oxtom looked startled.

"Why—no!" he hesitated. "Why should we? We'd had our communications from our agent before."

"But you could not be quite satisfied that the matter was genuine?" Beck asked the further question with a feeling that he might be on the fringe of a new development.

"Now that you come to mention it, Mr. Beck, I suppose I couldn't if you mean did we seek to obtain confirmation of the letter's authenticity."

"So you didn't do that, then?" "No, Mr. Beck, we didn't, and for that matter I don't suppose anyone else would have done either. We had no reason to suspect its being anything other than genuine, and in my own mind, Mr. Beck, I'm convinced that we're barking up the wrong tree by imagining it might not be."

"I suppose you could even at this late date, gain such confirmation?" "We could cable to Lancing, of course, if you think it necessary," Mr. Oxtom said.

"It shall be done first thing in the morning," he agreed.

Beck murmured his thanks. He looked at his watch. The dinner had been excellent. He felt an altogether different man.

A THREAT AFTER MIDNIGHT

As they stood in the spacious hall climbing into their overcoats, another thought occurred to the Superintendent. He turned to Peter Oxtom just as the manservant was opening the outer door.

"By the way, Mr. Oxtom, you'll forgive me if I appear unduly inquisitive but can you tell me whether every consignment of Chinese silk, no matter from where it may come, bears a different distinguishing mark?"

Peter Oxtom's eyes smiled. "Why of course, Mr. Beck. It is mainly through the different marks and the texture that we can identify them, and that is one of the things that make Chinese silk buying such an expert job."

"You mean that there is a sort of trade mark?" "Certainly. Sometimes, of course, it is much more elaborate than what we normally know by that name. In many instances it is actually woven into the silk by the weaver himself, and I have known such markings occupy a quite considerable space on the margins."

"Thank you, Mr. Oxtom. You've been marvellously helpful, and I expect we shall be meeting again tomorrow. I'll be down at the shop to have a few words with all your employees. I appreciate the gigantic nature of the task," he added, noticing the look of amazement in Oxtom's eyes. "But I assure you I'm accustomed to such orders."

"If you think it necessary," announced Oxtom, "you shall have every facility, Superintendent."

When Beck and Graves had taken their departure it was well past ten o'clock. Brenda and her mother were together in the lounge, and Peter remembered that there were some documents he had brought home with him which needed his consideration and which would have been done had it not been for the arrival of the two Scotland Yard officers.

The last, however, occupied him longer than he had anticipated, yet the matter was so urgent he ought to complete it before retiring to bed. Brenda and her mother had gone upstairs an hour ago, leaving him alone in the library with the documents not to mention there too long.

The servants had retired too, and the old house seemed eerily still. Peter Oxtom sat at his desk in the centre of the room turning over folio after folio, making occasional notes on his scribbling pad, and sometimes laying the papers aside to perform a mathematical calculation. The affair concerned the offer to purchase a retailing firm in the Midlands which had come into the market only recently, and Oxtom had promised to provide a full report of the position to the next meeting of his board of directors in a week's time.

He had been engaged in this task for some considerable time when he suddenly felt incredibly chilly. He glanced up, imagining that the electric fire on the opposite side of the room must have fused unnoticed by him, but the fire glowed with a crimson welcome. It was then that he felt a slight draught on the back of his neck and he wheeled around in his swivel chair to discover the reason for it.

What he saw made him pale. For a second he blinked, his eyes imagining that he must have fallen asleep at his desk and that this was the remnant of an unpleasant dream. Standing there with evil, inscrutable face was the most detestable-looking Mongolian he had ever seen. His face was thrust forward from his body. He seemed almost in the act of springing, and Oxtom noticed that, poised in one hand was an evil-looking knife. He remembered years ago, when he had paid a visit to China, seeing men of this type and inquiring who and what they were, for even then he had noted that they were, in a way different from the usual Chinamen. And he had been told that they were of somewhat mixed Tartar descent. . . . Incredibly strong and incredibly cruel.

"What the devil are you doing here?" the Englishman demanded, half springing to his feet, for whatever Peter Oxtom was, he was no coward.

"It would be foolish of you to throw away your life so easily," snarled the man. "You will please be seated, Mr. Oxtom."

There was a menace in the man's eyes that Oxtom, though he might be, decided he could not ignore.

"What do you want?" he demanded.

TH' TROUBLES THAT NEVER COME TAKE A HEAR-O' HAPPINESS OUTA LIFE.

Lamb
For Easter lunch gives promise of having a larger and more general appeal in Canada. The demand for lamb comes as a reward to sheep raisers and ranchers in the Dominion who have made consistent efforts to produce lambs of better quality and this year most stores and butcher shops will be able to cater to all orders for lamb especially during the next few weeks. The following recipe is recommended for a dinner on any day:

Roast Rolled Front of Lamb
This roast has the advantage of being tender and is easily carved. The butcher will always roll the front if asked to do so. The meat is of good quality and very sweet and when served has a very pleasing appearance. Roasted fronts may be purchased in weights ranging from 4½ to 6½ lbs.

In the roasting pan, and place in a hot oven (500 degrees F.). Allow to roast for 30 minutes. Add one cup of water. Continue to roast at a temperature of 350 degrees F. When meat is tender, add two small carrots, two onions, and celery (chop fine). Serve with gravy made from the pan. Decorate plate with parsley.

Milk in Meals
Milk, the bone builder; milk, the tooth builder; milk, the muscle regenerator; milk, the energy producer, milk, the health protector; in short, milk the most nearly perfect food, should be given first consideration in planning the daily meals. The ways in which a satisfactory amount of this indispensable food may be included in the diet, will naturally vary according to the tastes and food habits of different families. In cases where adults do not drink milk, the meals should provide the recommended half of milk in cooked foods. In this way half of the child's milk requirement will be furnished, and the remainder can then be served as a beverage.

A milk dish a meal is a good rule to follow in every home, and in this connection the Milk Utilization Service recommends the use of the following tested recipes.

Celery and Mushroom Soup
1 medium-sized head of celery
1 small onion
½ lb. mushrooms
2 tablespoons butter
3 tablespoons flour
3 cups milk
Salt and pepper

Chop onion and celery finely and boil until tender. Cut mushrooms in small pieces and boil five to eight minutes in small amount of water. Melt butter, blend in flour. Add milk gradually and stir until mixture thickens. Add celery, onion and mushrooms with sufficient water in which they were cooked to give desired consistency. Season to taste.

Cabbage Cooked in Milk
2 cups milk
6 cups shredded cabbage
1½ cup milk or cream
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons flour
½ teaspoon salt
Heat milk and cook cabbage in it two minutes. Add milk or cream, flour blended with butter, and salt. Cook for three or four minutes, stirring constantly.

Scalloped Eggs with Cheese

6 hard cooked eggs
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2½ cups milk
½ cup grated cheese
1½ cup buttered bread crumbs
Out eggs in half. Place in buttered baking dish. Make cream sauce of butter, flour and milk. Add grated cheese and seasonings. Pour sauce over the eggs. Sprinkle top with crumbs and bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until brown.

Coffee Marshmallow Custard
2 cups milk
4 tablespoons ground coffee
¼ teaspoon vanilla
8 eggs
2 tablespoons sugar
Pinch of salt
Marshmallows

Bring milk and coffee to boiling point. Strain. Beat eggs slightly. Combine sugar, salt, vanilla and milk. Strain into custard cups. Top each with a marshmallow. Oven-pouch in slow oven (325 degrees F.) until firm—about 30 minutes.

Did you ever attend a Spoofen-dufle PARTY ?

"Spoofenduffle?" you query, "what is a spoofenduffle party?" You never heard of a spoofenduffle party?

Well, we never did either. There probably isn't any such thing for the simple reason that no one ever started the idea and no one ever followed it up by repeatedly bringing it to public attention.

But people do know about Hallowe'en and Thanksgiving and Christmas parties. These events receive plenty of free advertising each year.

Wise merchants see to it that they have goods in stock which will help people to the fullest enjoyment of these festive occasions. Moreover, they let the people know about their readiness to serve them.

Window displays, floor and counter displays and advertising displays, all work together to the eventual benefit of merchants and customers.

Every merchant in Wainwright has some goods which will abet the enjoyment of the winter party season.

May we help you to help others enjoy their parties to the fullest extent?

This Week in Washington

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has drafted a permanent neutrality bill, which is quite likely to be adopted without material change. The objective is, of course, to keep the United States out of the European War which seems to be imminent.

The major provisions of the bill are a mandatory embargo on arms and on lending Government money to powers at war, with broad power granted to the President to forbid Americans to travel on vessels of belligerents or to ship any goods other than arms, upon which he may declare an embargo, on any American vessel.

Also, in time of peace the President could declare certain commodities "implements of war" and forbid their export without a Federal license.

That this or any other possible Act of Congress would effectively keep this country out of a war involving the great nations of the world is seriously questioned by some of the Senators, for whom Senator Johnson of California is spokesman. He declares that it cannot possibly work.

The attitude of Congress, however, is one of political isolation for the United States, an attitude which those who hold it do not regard as contradictory to the Secretary of State's policy of economic internationalism in which all of the great powers are now engaged.

Preparing for War

It is pointed out by some shrewd observers that the frantic efforts of England, Germany, Japan, Italy, France and Russia to prepare for another great war before they have finished paying for the last one, have been stimulated rather than checked by the extension of the American policy of neutrality.

In the last war the unengaged nations relied upon the United States not only for war materials but for foodstuffs, cotton and other commodities which they do not produce themselves. Now they are afraid that they will not be able to get such supplies from this side of the ocean so they have started to prepare themselves for war on their own resources.

With the other great powers enlarging their navies, it seems essential for us to do the same as a matter of national defense. Now we are committed to building two new great warships of 35,000 tons, to match the two of similar size for which England has already laid the keels.

The immediate stimulus to Britain's naval enlargement was Germany's action in building a fleet of "pocket" battleships and in other ways giving evidence of belligerent intent. Britain's activity stirred Japan to launch its own big navy program which gave a further fillip to American big navy propaganda.

Italy's growing ambition for domination of the Mediterranean is behind that nation's naval expansion, and that, in turn, has intensified Britain's resolve to be prepared to defend its route to the Orient by way of the Suez canal.

France, with its perpetual fear of Germany, felt obliged to meet the challenge from Berlin.

Thus Washington sees the major nations of the world concentrating their efforts on preparations for war and piling up their bonded indebtedness to a point where the burden of taxation is likely to become intolerable.

Besides navies, all of the nations are building competitive military air fleets as fast as they can, and in that, too, the United States is following their leadership—and at the same time extending neutrality laws as evidence that we do not intend to get into another war.

To make the paradox more complicated, our State Department is hard at work negotiating trade agreements with all the world designed to make it easier for other nations not only to buy our products but to sell us theirs and so raise more money with which to go to war.

It is a situation which is giving many members of the Administration and of Congress greater concern than they are willing publicly to admit. The demands of the other nations for products of the United States which they can use in their war preparations is already being felt, but under our present neutrality policy much of the demand cannot be supplied.

Problems in Steel

One of the big demands from abroad for American goods, and one which will grow as the naval race becomes more intense, is for steel. We need steel, also, for our new battleships, but so far the Navy Department has been unable to get bids from the steel makers, who claim they cannot supply the requirements because of the Walsh-Healey Act, which prohibits Government purchases in quantities above $10,000 except from manufacturers who observe the six-hour day and the five-day week in their plants.

This brings organized labor into the international and armament picture with another complication close at hand. John Lewis has declared the purpose of the C.I.O. to proceed aggressively to organize the workers in the steel industry, as he began to do in the automobile industry. The result may easily be a widespread labor war which will prevent anybody from getting steel from American mills for any purpose for a long time.

It is all a very complex situation, to which no little attention is being paid by the President's advisers and the leaders in Congress.

Nobody has talked much about the international outlook in public, because nobody has so far been able to put forward a single comprehensive program. The belief is growing here, however, that the whole subject of international relations will have to be brought out into the open for re-examination before long.

MODERN WOMEN

CHARL ORMOND WILLIAMS, President of National Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, Inc.

Ms. Leonie Villard, who has just arrived in this country is the first woman in France to hold a chair of literature in a university. She is professor of English and American literature at the University of Lyons. It was several years before another of her countrywomen was similarly honored. As Visiting Carnegie Professor she will lecture at five of the leading women's colleges here.

Dr. Marie Munk, the first woman lawyer and first woman judge in Germany, is in this country to talk on court procedure and penal treatment. She served as a judge in the Municipal Court in Berlin and for ten years was a Prussian judicial officer.

Another visitor is Miss Elizabeth Hildyard, daughter of Brigadier General Harold Charles Thornton Hildyard of the British Army. Miss Hildyard has been in Bernaua with her uncle, the recently appointed Governor. For several years she has helped to manage English laundries and she is now studying this work here.

Secretary of the Interior Harold I. Ickes has appointed Mrs. Janet Van Loon, daughter-in-law of Hendrik Willem Van Loon, author, to the script department of the educational radio project of the Office of Education.

The popular star of "Victoria Regina," Helen Hayes who has been appearing in this Broadway success for many months, will receive the 1936 gold medal, which is usually awarded by the National Speech-Arts Fellowship for the first time.

Signatures of more than one million men and women were on the people's mandate to governments of peace which was presented by Mrs. Caroline O'Day, Member of Congress, to the recent conference called by President Roosevelt in Buenos Aires.

PRICES OUT AGAIN IN C.N.R. DINING CARS

MONTREAL, Que.—Travelers who prefer to order their meals on the 1st class basis in dining cars of the Canadian National Railways will now have the benefit of a considerable reduction in prices, according to W. W. Swinden, general superintendent of sleeping and dining car services of the company.

While some travellers order meals of the table d'hôte variety, a combination meal at a fixed price, many other patrons prefer to be served dishes that suit their particular fancy on the 1st class principle and to these the reduced prices will particularly appeal. These reductions in price, ranging from twenty to over thirty per cent, will apply to the usual variety of dishes found on the menu and will result in considerable saving to those with an eye for economy.

"These reduced prices are being placed in effect with every regard to the high standard of service which prevails on Canadian National dining cars and are designed to further popularize the dining car service," stated Mr. Swinden.

PRISONERS OF WINTER

Will they get through this season safely—with strong bones—straight backs—sound teeth?

Little noses pressed against the pane... little bodies, eager for sunshine and play, cooped up in the house for days and weeks... Winter is a grim jailer, pitiless where children are concerned. You can't make sunshine but you can give your children the precious vitamins that safeguard health. Milk and cream supplies many times the usual potency of vitamins.
